The RRC may, in its sole discretion, accept or reject for its consideration any and all Proposals that contain minor and inconsequential irregularity, or where practicable to do so, the RRC may, as a condition of acceptance of a Proposal, request a Proponent to correct a minor and inconsequential irregularity with no change in proposed price.

The determination of what is or is not a minor and inconsequential irregularity, the determination of whether to accept, waive, or require correction of an irregularity, and the final determination of the validity, will be at the sole discretion of the RRC.

3.6.3 Method

Once a proposal has been accepted as eligible, the RRC will evaluate it using a Weighted Matrix method. A sample matrix is shown in Figure 1 below. During the draft of the RFP, the RRC will select the evaluation criteria and assign a “weight” to each one. The weight indicates each criterion’s relative importance in determining the successful Bidder. Proposals will be evaluated against each criterion using a scoring scale from 0 to 5, with the resulting score then being multiplied by the assigned weight to give a Result. The Results are summed up to give a Total Score for the evaluation. The RRC will assign scores at its sole discretion.

Item	Criteria	Weight	Score	Result
1	Exclusivity Payment to RRC	50	4.5	225
2	Customer Charge & Service	30	5	150
3	Past Experience	20	4	80
	TOTAL	100	N/A	455

In this sample, the vendor would have scored four hundred and fifty five (455) out of a possible total of five hundred (500). This Total will be compared against all other submissions, with the Proposal with the highest Total being deemed the Winning Proposal.

The RRC recognizes that “Best Value” is the essential part of purchasing a product and/or service and therefore the RRC may prefer a Proposal with a higher price, if it offers greater value and better serves the RRC’s interests, as determined by the RRC, over a Proposal with a low price. The RRC’s decision shall be final.

The RRC may, at its sole discretion, invite one or more Proponents for an interview or request further clarification to address any questions relating to their Proposal(s). Proponents will be responsible for any costs associated with the preparation for, and attendance at the interview to take place at a specified location in Fort McMurray, Alberta. The RRC may, at its sole discretion, select the format for the interview (i.e. in-person, telephone, video-conference, etc.).

The RRC may, if necessary, re-evaluate and adjust the previously determined scores based on the results of the interview(s).

3.7 Recapitulation of Proposals
